Correction made with two CD-ROMs, saved in ASCII format and other non-ASCII was correctly labeled in the directories.

A transmittal letter was made up on paper and saved on the CD-ROMs with all of the required information. (Machine format, operating systems compatibility, a list of files contained such as names of the files, size in bytes, dates, creation, plus any other special information that is necessary to identify, maintain, and interpret the information.)

The two CD-ROMs are made identical to each other and are also labeled "Copy 1, and Copy2"

The words "Abstract" and "Claimed" was spelled correctly
